

A true story

"You are a bit late out of the changing rooms Safia," said the hockey coach as Year 5 gathered for their afternoon's activities.

"Yes, sorry, but I have been using my HPL" said Safia.

"Really?" said the hockey coach, who was as interested in HPL in the classroom as any other areas of school.

"Yes sir, I had a problem."

"One that needed solving?"

"Yes, I forgot my yellow patrol shirt and we need them for today's inter patrol matches, I thought it best to think logically to solve the problem."

"Good, talk me through what you did."

"Well, I took it stage, by stage and worked out that if I could be seen with something yellow on I would be fine, so I made a flag to tie onto my stick."

"That's a bit of a risk."

"Well you always say that we won't learn unless we take risks".

"Ok, so do you think it will work?"

"Worth the risk sir, better turn up with something rather than appear not to care."
